A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY—CONCENTRATED CASTOR OIL
It's In Jelly Form

After many years of experimentation, our chemists have discovered a means of concentrating CASTOR OIL into jelly form and then flavoring it.

This new product is called CASTOR-JELL and is replacing CASTOR OIL wherever introduced.

The only difference between CASTOR-JELL and CASTOR OIL is that one is a jelly agreeably flavored, the other a liquid with the old familiar taste. A 35c jar contains ten doses and costs less than Castor Oil. Doctors recommend Castor-Jell when Castor Oil is needed.

Take home a 35c jar today. Your druggist will give you your money back if you are not satisfied.

A Smooth, Hairless Skin for Every Woman

(The Modern Beauty)

With the aid of a plain delatone paste it is an easy matter to rid the skin of unsightly hairy growths. The paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. This is applied to the hair not wanted and after 2 or 3 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. When you go to your druggist for delatone, be sure you get the genuine article.

KAISER ABANDONS HOPE OF RETURN TO GERMAN RULE

have put down the revolution in Berlin, but not one had the loyalty and courage to lift his hand.

To understand the Kaiser's bitterness against his generals one has to read some personal narratives concerning the known details of dramatic events at headquarters on late Nov. 3. They were written for archives which I have seen. After all there is some dignity with the way men leave a sinking ship or abandon a lost cause, but it does not appear that such was the case with the ex-Kaiser's entourage on that day. With the exception of one man all dropped away from him after another and advised him to flee. They told him and he was marching toward headquarters to get him, and finally informed him they could not guarantee his safety another night. They got him out after midnight and hurried him across the border at 5 o'clock in the morning.

Later the ex-Kaiser learned that much that was told him was not true. He is said to believe that if he had remained he might have saved the situation.

Brain Works Poorly.

Those who have seen him tell me that at times the Kaiser appears dazed and unsteady in his thinking. I am told that recently he failed to recognize a visitor whom he knew well. He asked this man, "Who are you, anyway?" one of those secured diplomats, he shouted as he jumped abruptly away.

To another visitor he bewailed the fact that the German general did not wait 24 hours longer before asking for an armistice. He said, "Italy was about to collapse in 24 hours more would have asked us for peace. A courier had already arrived at Berne with such a request."

"How can your majesty believe that Italy would ask peace after Austria capitulated?" he was asked.

"Oh, I didn't know that. I wasn't told that," the Kaiser answered. Yet with a flash of his old brilliancy the former ruler is said to have dismissed his visitor with a chapter in a book on Pan-Germanism by Roland Hupf, professor at Washington university in St. Louis, and recently republished in Holland. The book is entitled "Problems of the Far East." In it Prof. Hupf asserted that an unwritten alliance had been formed some years before between America, Great Britain and Germany, and that in the event Germany went to war the United States would declare in favor of the Kaiser and do the utmost to assist him.

This book the Kaiser is said to have quoted in justification of his belief that America was to enter the war at all events, no matter what Germany had done or intended to do. He is said to have had the feeling, therefore, that he could not have averted the entrance of America into the war and does not feel yet that any blame attaches to him for drawing America into the conflict.

Relations Strained.

Their common fate does not seem to have brought father and son any closer together, and their relations are said to be strained. The Kaiser is said to have taken policies of the father cost him his throne and the Kaiser is said to have destroyed his father.

The father, on the other hand, is represented as feeling outraged because his son did not take life more seriously. The ex-Kaiser remains greatly attached to his mother, and when he asked recently to be permitted to visit Amerongen to see her the ex-Kaiser is said to have gone into a paroxysm of rage and nervousness. He is said to have repeated his request a few days ago he was answered by the ex-Kaiser's personal physician, Dr. Fischer, who told him that the ex-Kaiser's condition was such that it was not advisable to mention the matter to him at present.

The desertion of his personal friends, especially those who were his favorites, has turned the soul of the ex-ruler into gall and wormwood. He can get over talking about it and calling them "traitors."

His one friend is his wife. Her tact, resignation, humility and devotion have won for her the love and respect of everybody at the castle. She has but to say in her gentle voice, "I'll help," and lay her hand on his arm to make him calm down.

Mother is wonderful," the crown prince is quoted as having said with sad enthusiasm and longing eyes as he turned to look at her picture on the mantel in his sparsely furnished room at Wieringen last week. And from what I have since learned it is easy to understand what he meant.

Between the ex-emperor's spells of depression and exaltation she finds it increasingly difficult to deal. For a time the fear that Holland would yield to a reported demand to surrender him was a ghastly talk with him and his ways. This has somewhat subsided now and Holland is not as anxious to get rid of him as formerly.

I find in all responsible Dutch circles that there is a feeling against giving him up, except by legal means such as govern the extradition of all persons accused of crimes. The Dutch are extremely jealous of their reputation of never having surrendered anyone who sought refuge within their borders except by methods provided by law and treaties.

Hentrich castle is guarded day and night by a detachment of ten soldiers, with reserves always close at hand in the event they are needed. Extra precautions have been taken since an automobile filled with Americans came from Brussels and demanded to see the ex-Kaiser. It is reported they had made a wager they would see the ex-Kaiser and took that method to win their bet. But they lost it.

Cowpunchers Return Home Clad in Kilts

NEW YORK, April 8.—Uniforms of 40 different British regiments were worn by 7,200 Americans from 12 states, who returned on the ship Mauretania. The men had enlisted in the British army during the war. There were also a number of negroes from the British West Indies, included in the list by the British consular agent, Maj. H. W. Burns, N. Y. S. W. who commanded the men, went from New York to England to enlist at the outbreak of the war. He saw his only "action," he said, when several Sinn Fein men assaulted him.

PARK CADDIES TO BE UNDER CONTROL

Commission Will Have Official Starter and Improve Conditions on Golf Links.

Bellevue has invaded the ranks of the golf caddies on the Overton park course with the result that the park commission Monday afternoon decided to regulate them by certain rules which will force them to show the players more respect and may also later result in the regulation of the players.

Ladies complained to the commission that the caddies have grown altogether too smart for their jackets. They allege that the youngsters are insolent and disagreeable and are trying to run the games to suit themselves. To regulate them and keep them within reasonable bounds the commission decided at a meeting held Monday afternoon that competent men would be employed as caddies and caddies off and that these starters will be made park police officers. Persons who have picked caddies and paid them larger tips than others will not in future have this privilege when the caddies are assigned them by the starters. Caddies, who some time play games themselves, will not be allowed to play unless they have a card.

No caddies will be allowed on the grounds unless he has a card furnished by the starter. Caddies, who some time play games themselves, will not be allowed to play unless they have a card.

The commissioners also have under consideration a plan to license all players, charging about $2 a year to play on the Overton park course.

WORKMEN UNITED IS MESSAGE OF BAVARIA

MUNICH, April 7. (By the Associated Press).—On behalf of the revolutionary central council of Bavaria, Herr Meisner today addressed the following official communication to all the workmen's councils:

"The workers of Bavaria have overcome their party divisions and united in a mighty block against all domination and exploitation. They have taken over the entire public authority. The Landtag has been dissolved and peoples' commissions have been appointed. Complete order is being maintained in all affairs and business and the administration is continuing.

"The workers' councils are to be controlled by works councils, which will control workers and direct affairs jointly with the management. Everything is to be done to the benefit of the community. Independent Socialization is therefore out of the question. It is the duty of the workers, peasants and soldiers councils everywhere to attend to the protection of the soviet revolution and to the working people for all actions and omissions.

"Today is a national holiday. Work will be suspended, but the railways and water, lighting and heating services will continue."

CAMDEN'S WIRE BOYCOTT GROWS; 400 PHONES OUT

CAMDEN, Ark., April 8. (Sp.)—The second week of the citizens' boycott of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company is on with both sides unyielding. The management of the local branch has declared that the company will not restore the striking operators at the increased wages ($10 flat per month to all operators), and the citizens almost daily renew their pledge to leave their phones idle until the company yields.

Representatives of the company started to circulate a petition or agreement proposing that telephones in business houses be put back in operation pending the settlement of the controversy.

The citizens' executive committee of 21 prominent business and professional men, who are circulating a petition, intend to boycott the company.

Local citizens are enthusiastic in their offers to subscribe for stock in the proposed home telephone company. They also offer to contribute to the strike fund. A long period of years as subscribers to telephones on the home exchange.

The citizens' committee states that more than 95 per cent of the patrons of the telephone company are making use of the home service. People who humoredly walk to business houses and offices to transact their business instead of using the phone. Nearly 400 phones are discontinued.
